

Building Rapport in 3 minutes

Ever met someone and instantly clicked?

That's not magic, that's rapport.
And we can build it in just 3 minutes.

Why It Matters

Whether it's an interview, a project, or a new teammate, rapport opens doors that words alone can't.

It makes conversations effortless.

Let's learn how to build rapport fast!

In any room, with anyone.

First Moves

Use their name early.

It makes things personal. People lean in when they feel seen.

Mirror their vibe!

Pick up on their energy.
Relaxed or formal? Match the tone.

Break the Ice

Ask one open-ended question.

It invites real conversation, not just yes/no replies.

Instead of "What do you do?"
Ask: "What made you attend this event ?"

Or

"What's one project you're excited about lately?"

Non-Verbal Cues

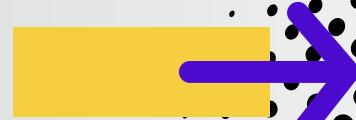

Share something small + relatable.

A quick story, a shared experience,
that's how connection starts.

Nod. Smile. Be present.

Our face starts the connection before our voice does.

Subtle Signals

Match their pace and tone.

If they speak slow, ease into it. If they're high-energy, match the spark.

This shows alignment; that we're tuned into them, not just ourselves.

Conversations That Click

Rapport isn't luck, it's a learned skill.

And watch walls turn into bridges.

Save this for your next interview or event.
